NAVY DINNER RECOMMENDATIONS

Eat like a WWII Sailor!

To make your overnight experience more authentic, we recommend trying one of these Navy menus for your dinner! Looking at the menus in the Museum's collection, the Navy followed a simple formula for their meals:

Protein

Vegetable

Starch

Desert

They usually had more than one option in each category for variety and to make sure all of the 3,500 men had something good to eat.

Admiral Halsey joins in a WWII thanksgiving meal

Below are 3 classic main dish recipes. We're sharing them both in their original format (in case you want to make enough for 100 people!) and scaled down to feed a family of four. These entrees would usually be served with sides of steamed vegetables, bread rolls, and a desert. (For pickier eaters, hot dogs or hamburgers were also popular menu options onboard!)

NAVY BREAKFAST RECOMMENDATIONS

The Mess Hall usually offered multiple breakfast options all at once, but since you're probably not feeding hundreds at a time, you may just want to pick a few:

Eggs (fried, scrambled, or boiled)
Grilled meat (bacon, ham, sausage, or assorted lunch meat)
Potatoes (home fried, cottage style, or hash browns)
Hotcakes (with varied fruit and syrups)
Pastries (doughnuts, hot cross buns, pecan rolls, etc)
Oatmeal or Grits
Dry Cereal
Hot Toast
Fresh Fruit

They would also have multiple kinds of Fruit Juices, Milk, Chocolate Milk, and Coffee available to drink so that everyone aboard could start their days off right!

WARDROOM PANTRY

The Wardroom was the main mess for the officers. Unlike the cafeteria-style chow line that the enlisted crew had down on the 3rd Deck, food here was served as in a restaurant, with stewards acting as cooks, waiters, and bussers. Officers also had to pay for their meals whereas food from the enlisted mess was given for free. The tables in the Wardroom were set with tablecloths, silverware, and china and officers were expected to dress in the uniform of the day.

These remind me of my old days at sea!

OTHER WAYS TO ENHANCE THE SHIP EXPERIENCE

If you really want to feel like a sailor—try some of the following at home!

1. Have everyone in the house sleep in the same room, ideally laying sleeping bags head to toe.
2. Tape a light to the bottom of your coffee table and lie under it to read a book.
3. Lock the bathroom for a random four-hour period.
4. Make your family qualify to operate the appliances in your home (i.e. Dishwasher Operator, Blender Technician, etc.). They're the only ones who can touch those appliances for the next 24 hours.
5. Have your parents write down everything they're going to do the next day, then stand in the back yard at 6 AM and have them read it to you.
6. When you take a shower, turn off the water while soaping.
7. Set your alarm clock to go off at a random time during the night. When it goes off, jump out of bed, get dressed as fast as you can, then run into your backyard and turn on the garden hose.
8. Clean your room until there's not a speck of dust anywhere. Call on your parent to come inspect your room. Your parent cannot leave until they find an irrational fault with your room/belongings.
9. Monitor all home appliances hourly, recording all vital information (ie: plugged in, lights come on when doors open, etc.)
10. Buy 50 rolls of toilet paper and lock up all but two rolls. Ensure one of these two rolls is wet.
11. Submit a written request form to your parents any time you want to leave your house.
12. Empty all the garbage bins in your house, and sweep your driveway 3 times a day, whether they need it or not.
